EDITORIAL

This is the fourth publication of Elmwood High's Inscripta. Ever since the first issue our yearbook staffs have traditionally striven to make each issue superior to those of previous years. By attempting to correct the errors and omissions of past issues, we of the 1962-63 staff hope that we have produced an Inscripta of high quality.

I should like to say that although my task was time-consuming and placed a great deal of responsibility on my shoulders, I enjoyed every minute of it. The experience that this editing position has given me will undoubtedly prove to be invaluable in the future, and the friends I have made I will cherish for many years to come. At times I found the task trying, tiring, and seemingly interminable. However, the final completion has been the most gratifying experience of my life.

This Inscripta, which you are now reading was definitely not the work of any one person. On the contrary, it is the result of the combined efforts of the entire staff. Although this staff is comprised of a mere handful of the student body, the absence of any one member would have detracted from the quality of our yearbook. Although the staff members had conflicting viewpoints their common aim for a good yearbook overcame all obstacles.

This has been an eventful year at Elmwood High School. Our minstrel show entitled "Way Down South" was a smashing success both musically and financially. Our "Reach for the Top" quiz team became undisputed champions of their city. We improved athletically and scholastically. The emergence of new clubs and committees and especially the Pep Club has boosted school spirit to a new high. We have attempted to record as much as possible of the past year and to give credit where it is due. I hope that in years to come when you look at your copy of the Inscripta you can say "Ah yes, I remember . . ." as you fondly recall the events of the past.

I would like to thank the members of the staff who so ably assisted me in the production of this yearbook. I would especially like to thank Jim Emler for his untiring aid and complete co-operation without which this yearbook would have been impossible. I would like to thank those individuals whose interest prompted them to submit material to the staff. Finally I would like to express my gratitude to our printer "Hignell Printing Limited".

In closing let me impress upon you that this yearbook is dedicated to you, the students, of Elmwood High School and especially the graduating class. Whether you enter business, continue your education at university or return to Elmwood High, may success be with you always.

Principal's Message

"There is a tide in the affairs of men
Which taken at the flood leads on to fortune.
Omitted and all the voyage of their lives
Is bound in misery and in shallows.
On such a sea are we now afloat
And we must take the current as it serves
Or lose our venture."

From "Julius Caesar",
By Shakespeare.

These words spoke a truth at the time that Shakespeare wrote them. They always have been true and always will be true. Our reaction to them as individuals is what counts for each of us. It may be a useful exercise if we were to check the past year to see how we have fared on the sea of life during that time.

Last September, the tide was in the flood stage for most of us. We were poised, ready to start another school year. Many were prepared to take control of their lives and drive on the flood tide to fortune. Others were quite willing to avoid the flood tide and slip away into shallow living.

Among students who took advantage of the opportunity of sailing their ships on the high tide were the two who suggested the revival of the school newspaper. The five editions of the paper which you have read provide ample evidence of their journey on the high seas to fortune. The proof—you have enjoyed reading the papers and the school has an authentic record of the important events of the past school term.

One day last winter, in the small hours of the morning, a young man of Elmwood High was jumping for a record in the Golden Boy Indoor Track Meet. He persisted, despite the fact that it was past the midnight hour, and he achieved what he was aiming at. He established the record. He was declared champion of the meet. He rode out the flood tide. His name—Orton Harrison.

I am writing this on the day that our Quiz Team goes into the finals of the "Reach for the Top" competition. We do not know what the outcome of these contests will be. However, we do know that this group of four students have shown industry and intelligence in arriving in the finals. They, with able help of their sponsor Mr. Mallon, seized the opportunity presented to them and won fame for themselves and for their school.

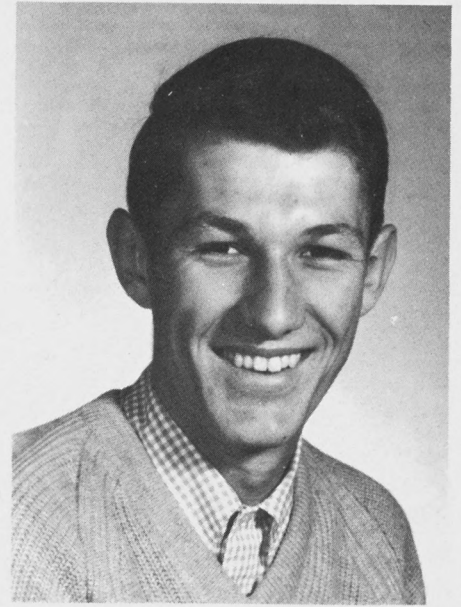

Yesterday we had the assembly of students in the auditorium to hear the candidates for the President and Vice-President of the 1963-64 student council. There were a record number of candidates for these positions, with their sponsors, eighteen in all. The speeches were excellent in content, fluent in delivery and enjoyed by the audience, staff and students alike. The advertising for the election was extensive and in good taste. A large section of the student body took the tide at the flood for the student election.

Finally, we are afloat on the sea of approaching examinations. Some have seized the chance by working from the first of the year. The result is that they are exempt from writing the exams. Others, while not exempt, have kept their heads above water and are likely to float in without being submerged by the finals. Still others are going to have to struggle to keep dry while others who fail in one or two are going to get their feet wet. But those who do not even now take the tide at the flood stage will be living in the shallows.

May you sail on the flood tide as you face a New Year and not lose your venture. Best wishes!

—D. S. McIntyre

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

Bill Kops

As another school year draws to a close, we the students of Elmwood High School can look upon our achievements with pride. This year has passed into the oblivion of time, but has not been obliterated in our memories.

Elmwood has taken a great stride forward in the field of inter-high school athletics during this past term. We had much more participation in all athletic activities and this in many ways, is more important than winning.

This year at Elmwood we initiated two new committees, the Football Committee and the Pep Club. Also in the school were such groups as the Science Club, Red Cross, French Club and Social Studies Club which all deserve much credit for the large part they have played in developing our future Canadian citizens.

This past term the teachers and the students of Elmwood High co-operated fully and their combined efforts successfully produced the annual tea and a minstrel show entitled "Way Down South". Such events are very important activities for they show our parents that we are capable of handling such responsibilities.

I would like to extend my sincere congratulations to our television quiz team. This team composed of George Durnin, Robert Pawlik, Alan Alvare and Leila Innis, was probably responsible for the biggest boost that our school spirit received last term. They kept the school in a constant state of suspense and excitement until they finally won the competition. In so doing, they proved that the scholastic standards of Elmwood High are of the highest.

I would like to congratulate the social committee on a job well done.

I would like to thank the Editor of this yearbook and his staff for this opportunity to express my thoughts about the past year.

In closing I would like to thank the student council for their very capable assistance throughout the year and also extend my best wishes to the graduates and students of our school in their future undertakings.

—Bill Kops

GOVERNOR- GENERAL'S MEDALLIST

George Durnin

Ever since Junior High School George Durnin has been noted for his outstanding scholastic achievements. Once again he has shown us that he is a student of the highest calibre by winning the Governor-General's medal for 1961-62.

A Governor-General's medallist is selected partly, but not solely on the basis of academic achievement. In addition, the winner of this coveted award, must make a substantial contribution to the life of the school by participation in school activities, and must have a degree of ability in leadership in some phase of these activities. While many students might qualify in one or other of these respects, George was one of the few who qualified completely.

Throughout his school years George has constantly been at the head of his class. He has won many School Board prizes for the highest average in each grade. Now he has culminated all this by winning the highest award his school has to offer.

Although a great deal of work was necessary in maintaining such a high level of scholarship George did not neglect School activities. His high degree of participation was partly responsible for his winning the medal.

George distinguished himself as the president of the Science Club, which had the most successful year. One of the projects entered by the club won second prize in the Chemistry division. George also participated in the French Club. He was a continuous aid to Mr. Davidchuk in the administration of the club.

We have seen George's success continue into Grade XII. He achieved city-wide acclaim as he and three other students demonstrated their knowledge and ability by winning the "Reach for the Top" Competition.

We are pleased that George has received the Governor-General's medal, which his industry and initiative so richly warranted. We wish to extend to George our heartiest congratulations and wish him success in whatever course he may choose to follow in the future.

VALEDICTORY

Virginia Gerelus

Mr. McIntyre, honored guests, ladies and gentlemen.

I would like, first of all, to say how grateful and pleased I am to have been chosen to deliver the valedictory speech.

This night, fellow-graduates, signifies the culmination of twelve or thirteen years of schooling. Gone are the carefree days of childhood when the world seemed to be a place only for fun, for play and for pleasure. No sorrows or problems beset us then. However, as we grew older, gradually we realized that there was much more to life than mere play. We became aware that there was pain and suffering in the world and that there were problems to be met and dealt with. Through these growing-up years, however, there was always someone to comfort us in our sorrows, to aid us in our distress and to teach us to take failures in our stride and to face reality and the future with confidence.

As we say farewell to this school I would like to add on your behalf a sincere thank you to perhaps the best and truest friends we will ever have, our parents and teachers.

Not only did we learn facts from textbooks, but we learned also about life in its many facets. These patient, understanding people prepared us for our meeting with the rest of the world. We may not fully appreciate their advice and their teachings at this time but in later life we will remember and say thanks again.

The words,

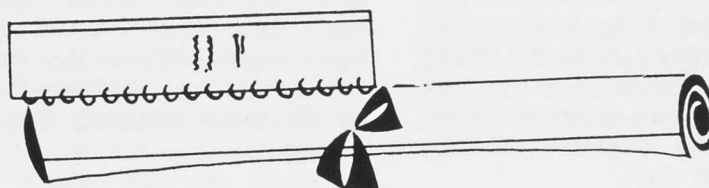

"Take up our quarrel with the foe

To you with failing hands we throw the torch:
Be yours to hold it high,"

are familiar to everyone, but now they should hold a special meaning for each one of us. They should remind us that now it is our turn to catch the torch and to fight to free the human race from the oppressive chains of poverty, prejudice, communism, ignorance, and disease. Let us use the education obtained here, within these walls, to the advantage of mankind; to build up our civilization, not to destroy it. Let us not forget the lessons learned here but use the knowledge to aid those who have died fighting so that we may live in a better freer world, and keep up the fight never giving up, no matter what obstacles bar the way.

And now, fellow-graduates, I say farewell on your behalf and end with these words.

"Brothers in learning
And brothers at heart,
Life lies before us
Here's luck to the start."

12-1

Kazu Abe — One of the quieter lads of 12-1. Can be seen dashing from class to class; first one in, first one out. Ambition: to win the Grand Prix. Fate: grease monkey at Brooklyn Speedway.

Lynne Bellamy — This short, sometimes red-headed cheerleader can usually be found "just vegetating" from day to day. Her likes are varied: boys, guys, and men. Pet peeve: restricted movies. Main ambition: Lab Technician. Fate: Cutting corpuscles for some unfortunate man.

Ralph Caldwell — A fine guy of 12-1, who is always in a good mood (ha). His interests lie in a particular girl in 10-28. Ambition: To be a wealthy agriculturalist. Ultimate Fate: A farmer with a still.

Doug Danell — One of the "bigger" men of 12-1. Doug curls regularly at Elmwood. He always seems to win, but never quite makes it to the top. Usually "wiped" by big Louis during wrestling matches in Phys. Ed.

George Durnin — 12-1's contribution to the E. H. S.'s quiz team, and the undisputed champion of the room 5 ping-pong club. Pet peeve: dirty ice cubes. Ambition: To set foot on "ye old moone", and to become president of the Englebert Humpardinck fan club.

Patsy Gerelus — This year's co-editor of the newly established Electra. Can be found wandering around the halls searching for a new love (wait till D. S. hears about this). Ambition: Home Economics teacher. Fate: Virginia's cook on safari.

Virginia Gerelus — Also co-editor of Electra. Active member of choir and Science Club, one of the FEW members of 12-1 who participated in the Minstrel Show. Ambition: Archaeologist. Fate: diving into the Nile for Egyptian relics.

Len Goodman — One of the so-called Physicists of 12-1. Can always be seen dreaming of figures. Ambition: To pass grade XII, but the bubbling machine says No?? Interests: girls, dames and women. P.P. and figures such as 38-23-36.

Bruce "Cousy" Guyda — One of 12-1's gifts to the game of basketball? Interests include baseball, basketball and playing pool with R.S. Pet peeve: sore elbows from continually dunking basketballs. Ambition: ??? Ultimate fate: Official Scorekeeper at Elmwood High's basketball games.

Linda Harrop — An active member of the choir and the Science Club. Hates messy lockers but can't seem to find the time to clean her's. Ambition: Social worker. Ultimate fate: cleaning woman at Old Folk's Home.

Jackie Hedley — One of the gals who just couldn't resist leaving Elmwood High School. Ambition: Commercial Artist. Fate: paint brush cleaner. Pet Peeve: our lunch room facilities. Favorite Pastime: skipping Phys-Ed classes.

Ron Hutchinson — Ron is a "man" of few words. "Dad can I have the car?" Can usually be seen arguing with E. P. and M. P. over some trivial subject. Ambition: Educated farmer. Ultimate Fate: Country Hick.

Gary Johnson — Having the intellectual assistance of R.M. and P.S. this well-liked lad is guaranteed to pass with flying colours. With his speedy old Chev. he is still challenging any car of 35 horsepower and under.

Dennis Kichak — One of the "Quiet" lads of 12-1. Usually seen at 8:45 doing yesterday's chemistry assignment. Pet Peeve: White socks and continentals. Ambition: To travel around the world. Ultimate fate: getting as far as Kenora, Ontario.

Al "The Earthquake" Kinley — Another 12-1 athlete who likes hockey, baseball, basketball and football. Excels in pen-borrowing, singing, beet-picking and grape stomping. Led E.E. baseball club in stolen bases, bats, balls, and gloves. Ambition: Business tycoon. Ultimate fate: Skimming scum of vinegar vats.

Les Kinoshita — Another one of the hunters of 12-1. Can be seen with D.T. or J.M. Likes pool, hunting, fishing, airplanes, football and MONEY!! Ambition: To get a Test Pilot's licence. Ultimate Fate: Packing parachutes.

Charlie Kurtz — "Sonny" participates in all sports: especially hockey. Usually seen staggering out of physics class mumbling, "wha' happened?" Ambition: To play beside Frank Mahovlich. Ultimate Fate: Puck-polisher at Kelvin. Pet Peeve: Goalies who hide behind the net when he shoots.

Henry Lowicki — This handsome, tall fellow is 12-1's contribution to the female sex. Can be seen in the halls with H.O. and A.M. Can't quite figure out what happens in Physics class. Ambition: Scientist. Ultimate Fate: Test tube cleaner.

Al MacDonald — This guy is no relation to the Mr. MacDonald at all. Can be seen with H.L. or studying in class ? ? Ambition: To help set the rockets at Cape Canaveral. Ultimate Fate: Spy for the U.S.S.R. Likes anything from everything.

Beverley Mann — 12-1's "Sister Spinster". Can usually be seen running into Room 1 just before the bell. Likes: Sports, boys, and Sandy. Pet Peeve: B.W.K. fans and "holey" nylons. Ambition: Nursing. Ultimate Fate: Inventor of non-run, non-hole nylons.

Richard Mantay — This student needs no Anacin during exams. A quiet, friendly fellow, Richard is liked by everyone. Ambition: to enter university and let someone else shine his shoes. Ultimate Fate: College man without shoes.

Gordon Menzies — 12-1's ardent golfer. Always golfs over 100?? Likes: golf, golf, golf and, more golf. Ambition: to be another Gary Player: Fate: grass cutter at Rossmere.

Jim Mowatt — One of 12-1's three hunters. Seen in the morning, noon, at four and in between with B.M. Likes: Hunting, fishing, pool and school! Ambition: To be a hunter. Ultimate fate: Fowl Killer.

Tam Nishizeki — The energetic sports captain of 12-1. Maintains a full curriculum with participation in Science Club, Choir, Basketball, and Volleyball. Sports is not the only field in which she excels. This is readily shown by her marks. Ambition: Physiotherapy. Favorite Saying: What a Nut!

Hans Osted — 12-1's infallible answer to the nuclear deterrent problem. This Minuteman is famous for his detention minus 15 second entries. Pet Peeves: G.D. and snowless winters. Ambition: Army via R.O.T.P. Ultimate Fate: B.Sc. and first 6'4" astronaut.

Ernie Parrish — One of the brighter lads of 12-1??? Managed to pass French, for the first time in history. CONGRATULATIONS! Likes cheap food, D.T., and driving. Ambition: French teacher??? Ultimate fate: another year of Mrs. Janus' French.

Mel Peters — a celebrated member of 12-1's renowned basketball team. Could become an all round student if the corners of his head were filed off. Ambition: receiving life membership in T. A. T. T. A. Ultimate Fate: Guyda's hat boy for life.

Louis Radakovits — Big Louie can be found stumblin' out of Mr. MacDonald's chemistry classes, wondering what hit 'im. Likes: New York Yankees, chemistry, and naturally the Canadiens. Ambition: To play for the Blue Bombers with Charlie Sheppard. Ultimate Fate: water boy with Sid.

Estelle Reimar — The dark-haired lass can be seen with her better half L.H. Likes: boys, food, boys and more boys. Favorite class: Physics ? ? Ambition: To be a blooming housewife. Ultimate Fate: Mother's Helper for Life. Pet Peeve: G. D.'s marks.

Peter Schimmelpfennig — Tall sauve, devastating, debonaire (ha-ha-ha). Member of 12-1 who can be seen arranging dates at the last minute (remember Graduation?) Ambition: Hasn't got one. Ultimate Fate: being chased by women.

Sid Selver — Don Juan of 12-1 (so he thinks). Can be found sizing up the girls at all basketball dances, coke dances, and school dances. Likes to play the field (what field we haven't found out yet). Ambition: to play football. Ultimate Fate: Water boy for B.B.

Don Troughton — Can be seen with L. K. arguing in halls. Managed to play hockey this year besides keeping his marks average. Hopes to have a blind date with Jayne Mansfield someday. Ambition: To be the greatest hockey star, everlasting in the hall of fame. Ultimate Fate: Skate sharpener at Kelvin Shoemaker's.

Linda Woods — This cheerleader from 12-1 can be found defending herself on Day 2 in Physics Lab. Likes: Tom, Brandon Wheat Kings, and kilts. Pet Peeve: Elmwood High School spirit. Ambition: Housewife with 10 wee ones. Ultimate Fate: Fixer upper for injured Brandon Wheat Kings.

Ed Zagowski — Can be found every place else but shovelling his way in to school. Likes to entertain the females in his swingin' pad downtown. Always zips out of class the first. Ambition: To travel around the globe. Ultimate Fate: Clerk at Cook's Travel Agency.

Pat Zuker — This blonde can always be seen wandering the halls in her never-ending search for a boy. Besides boys she also likes "Prunes", the Wheat Kings, R.T., and cheerleading. Ambition — Pharmacist. Ultimate Fate: Aspirin Packer.

12-7

Ken "Harry" Harrison — The handsomest, strongest and smartest man in 12-7??? Can usually be seen eyeing girls in the hall. Pet peeve: Tall girls. Ambition: Needing a lawyer to get him out of Stoney Mountain Pen.

Sandra Hawryluk — Red-headed intellect of 12-7. 'Prefers: Freud to fellows: Tchaikovsky to Twist. Ambition: Psychiatrist. Ultimate Fate: Inmate at Selkirk. Pet peeve: Maths, being practical, punctual (manages to miss part of each class).

Since 1941, through our Junior Council, we have been

Keeping Young with Young Canada

Judy Almrud

Ian Thomson

ELMWOOD HIGH SCHOOL

The youthful enthusiasm and energy of the 21 Junior Council groups and the 17 Junior Executive groups, (they started in 1946) we have been privileged to work with has kept us very much in touch with the needs and desires of the High School students in Metropolitan Winnipeg. The representatives each year have been of outstanding calibre, and we are particularly proud of the 1962-1963 twenty-six Junior Executives and twenty-nine Junior Councillors, many of whom have achieved academic and other distinctions.

Chosen for high academic standing, personality, and interest and participation in student activities, through practical experience in selling and informative discussion in their weekly meetings, they learn the fundamentals of modern retail business methods and merchandising.

MIDDLE ROW: Elaine Kurys, Colleen Iverach, Joan Arthur, Rosemary Kreshka, Diane Komodowski, Marlene Douglas, Rhonda Schellenburg, Mildred Paige, Joyce Oleksiuk, Mr. Labovich.

PEP CLUB

The Pep Club has been one of this year's most inspiring activities. The club, originated by Al Parker, has boosted school spirit to the highest it has ever been at Elmwood High. All members wore beanies and some made megaphones and cheer sheets.

Al, and Dave Winters the Co-chairmen, lead the spectators through all the cheers, the favorite being

"Give me an E". Although only one pep rally was held, school spirit was tops at every game, win or lose. I'm sure most of you will agree that the Pep Club is the best thing that has ever happened to Elmwood High School spirit. Of course we must not forget the cheerleaders who cheered loudest at each game.

INTER-HIGH CHESS TEAM

MINSTREL SHOW

As you know a musical production in a school is one of the important events during the school year. This year Elmwood High School produced a Minstrel Show which was a great success as those of you who saw it will agree. You perhaps would be interested in the story behind this show which helped to make it a satisfactory production.

Last October two grade 11 students, Marlene Douglas and Noreen Marshall, suggested to Mr. Meadows that a Minstrel Show might be a worthy musical production that could be presented by the students of this school. Both these girls and Mrs. Meadows and Miss Kearney worked very hard towards writing the script, arranging the dances, and selecting the music which went into production after the Christmas Holidays. Many hours were spent in rehearsals during the month of January, with the practice of dance routines and the learning of melodies and words for some forty songs. The main purpose of the show was to present music which would reveal the influence of the Negro people to the music of North America.

The First Act showed two types of songs and presented the feelings of the Negro slave through his work songs and his religious songs, both happy and sad.

The Second Act showed a scene on the riverboat where the white people had also been influenced by the expressions in songs of the Negro and showed black and white working together on the boats and the wharves near the Mississippi River. Many songs of Stephen Foster were used as indication of his understanding of the Negro people and their music.

The Third Act gave us a picture of a true Minstrel Show as it was presented for the paying public in the time of Al Jolson and George Gershwin. The Interlocutor, the End Man, (Mr. Tambo and Mr. Bones) and the Minstrel Chorus gave much lively entertainment to their audience. Here for the first time the public really accepted the musical and rhythmic ability of the Negro.

In producing a show of this nature in our school one must remember that singing and dancing are not the only contributing factors to a production of this nature. The appropriate scenery, the colorful costumes, the effective dialogue, the make-up, the procuring of the many properties were all responsible for making our concert a tremendous success. Mr. Kemp, Mrs. Woods, Miss Skremetka, Mr. Romalis, Mrs. Janus, Tibor Mallor and their committees worked very hard during and out of school hours in order that all aspects of our show would be a complete production.

MUNA

Irene Mousseau, Mr. F. Isaak, Jerry Lorenz.

This year Irene Mousseau and Jerry Lorenz were fortunate enough to be chosen as representatives to the Model United Nations Assembly, which was sponsored by the Rotary Club of Winnipeg, and which was held at Grant Park High School on April 19 and 20. They represented the country of Cambodia.

During the day, the time was filled with bloc meetings and Assembly meetings which at times were very hectic. Among the topics dealt with were refugees, trade and development, disarmament and the policies of Apartheid in South Africa.

Not only were their minds broadened by the events discussed but they learned much about their fellow Canadians and American neighbours, who came there from Saskatchewan, other parts of Manitoba, Alberta, Ontario, Minnesota and the Dakotas.

However, it was not all work and no play, for during the first evening they attended a dinner and dance at United College. The social events were climaxed with a formal banquet and dance on the second day at the Royal Alexandra Hotel which the Honourable Errick F. Willis, the Lieutenant-Governor of Manitoba, and His Excellency Michael Comay, Israeli Ambassador to United Nations, attended.

After meeting many wonderful and friendly people, and learning much about the things which shape our world, Irene and Jerry came home with many memories.

QUIZ TEAM

Elmwood High School's quiz team won the "Reach for the Top" program last Thursday night when they defeated Daniel McIntyre Collegiate in the final. It was Elmwood's seventh appearance in the thirty-two week program series.

The Elmwood team jumped into an early lead and before the program concluded they had increased their point spread over their opponents to 165. Elmwood finished with 430 points to Daniel Mac's 265.

Following the quiz portion of the program Scott Bateman, Deputy Minister of Education, presented Principal D. S. McIntyre with a trophy and a 1,000 dollar scholarship.

The questions used on the show were composed by a panel of seventeen high school teachers who took into consideration the grade 12 curriculum, general knowledge and current affairs.

The panel members were quizzed on such topics as classical music, art, the Bible and sports.

Leila Innes, of 236 Poplar Avenue, was picked for art and music. Like the other panel members she says that their television appearances didn't require much extra work, but it did familiarize them with subjects that were not part of their high school curriculum.

George Durnin of 104 Harbison Avenue, was the scientific and current affairs expert. A grade 12 student, he is preparing for a career in scientific research. George has a dark room at home so he can do his own developing in his photographic hobby. He is also interested in astronomy and plays the violin.

Robert Pawlik of 111 Hart Avenue answered questions on the Bible and geography. As a grade 11 student, Robert has been recommended in all of his subjects but will write for a scholarship. He plans to do some scientific research on his own this summer.

Alan Alvare, of 236 McIntosh Avenue, was the panel's expert on history. This was a natural for Alan as he plans to work for a Ph.D. in history when he finishes high school.

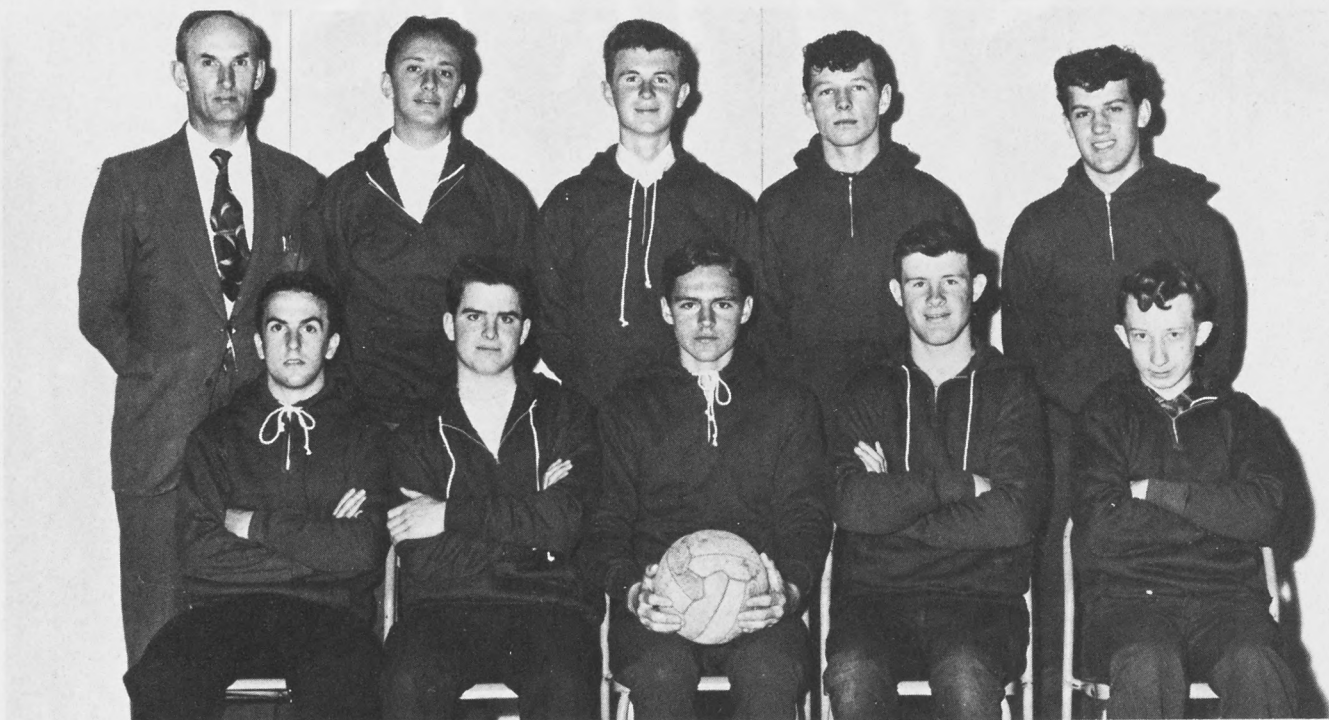

All of Elmwood High should be proud of these fine students.

ELEPHUNNIES

Q. How do you make an elephant float?

A. Two scoops of ice cream, a bottle of seven-up and one elephant.

Q. Why do elephants wear red runners?

A. Their white ones are in the wash.

Q. Why do elephants have wrinkled ankles?

A. They tie their sneakers too high.

Q. How do you tell if an elephant is in the bathtub?

A. He can't close the shower curtain.

Q. Why did the mouse marry the elephant?

A. He had to.

Q. Why do elephants have flat feet?

A. From jumping out of trees.

Q. Why do elephants clip their toenails?

A. So their ballet shoes don't wear out.

Q. How do you tell an elephant from a blueberry?

A. By his eyes.

Q. Why do elephants walk sideways in a meadow?

A. So they can trip field-mice.

Q. What would you say if you saw five elephants walking along a road in pink tee-shirts?

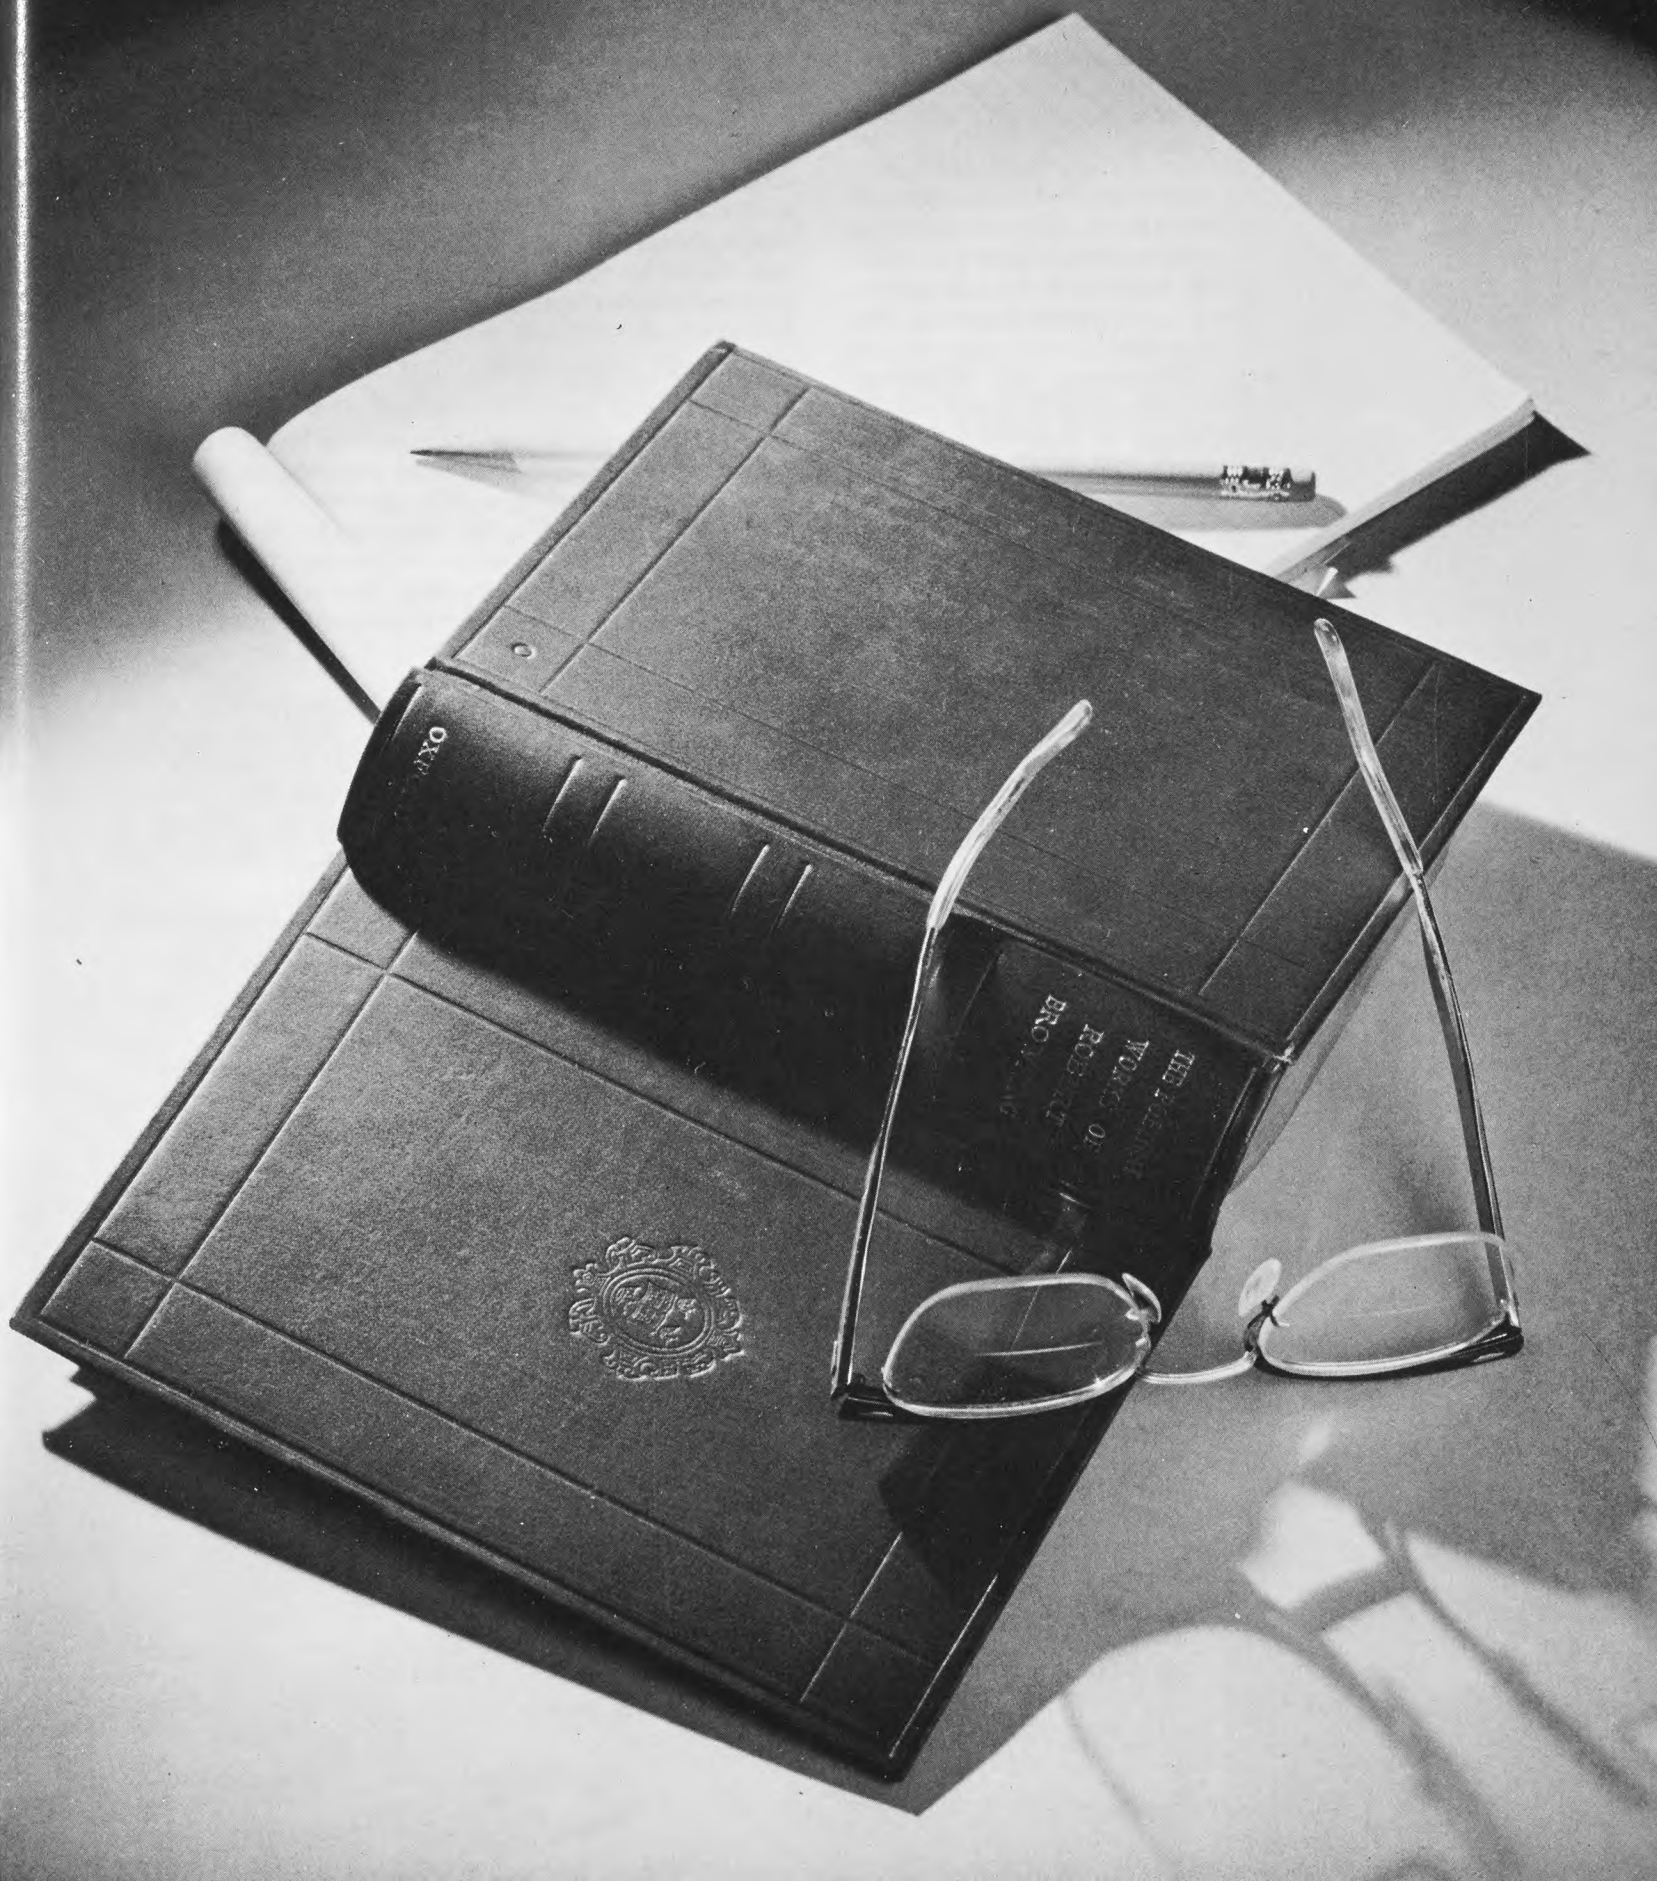

A. They were all on the same basketball team.

Q. What were Tarzan's last words?

A. Whogreasdevines?

LITERARY

"MUST WE CONFORM"

The answer to this apparently complex query may be found at the very base of our social system. This is founded upon the belief that a number of individual intellects can direct their collective actions as a coherent unit, while simultaneously insuring that each individual shall have freedom of personal action. The problem of conformity resolves itself into two separate aspects.

The first of these is conformity in a sense of adapting oneself or complying, in contradistinction to conformity in the sense of making oneself similar to others. In our society it is immediately apparent that, while maximum personal liberty may be desirable, the destiny of the whole group must not be endangered by one of its components. In a practical sense this implies that at times of crisis such as wars, individual liberties must be sacrificed for the survival of the entire group. Thus, conformity in the form of conscription or drafting for armed service is justifiable, even within a society stressing freedom of the individual (or non-conformity). In this regard it is also clear that the individual must adapt himself to his society by accepting certain restrictions and responsibilities in order that the society as a whole may function efficiently.

This concept of efficiency introduces an opposing conceptual train, that is, does conformity in the sense of making oneself similar to others, result in efficiency for the society as a whole? On the surface it would appear that having a society of automatons would simplify government, since decisions could be speedily ratified if all thought alike. While this is true, it ignores the fact that our society only operates while it is refreshed by a stream of new ideas, and that, without these, it would stagnate and die as have so many in the past. Without non-conformists, our ancestors might never have discovered America, or, for that matter, the wheel. Scientific and technological progress, in great measure, depends upon originality of thought and action in scientists, politicians and especially in the populace as a whole. Only public interest and political open-mindedness have enabled scientists to break their ties with the earth, and to unleash the great flock of progress made possible by space research. This, however, is only one side of the story.

It may be argued, for example, that total conformity would result in the end of wars, mankind's greatest scourge. While this may be true, and while wars may be tragic, they also provide an excellent means of bettering man. Conqueror and conquered alike are subjected to an inundation of new ideas, and research often makes its greatest discoveries at such times. Only cataclysmic events such as wars have saved mankind from a slower or surer fate—stagnation.

Thus, it seems clear that while conformity as an end is undesirable in our society, it is necessary to indulge in conformity to assure that the society will continue to exist, supplying a suitable environment for individualism. The individual must sacrifice his individuality to at least some extent, or he may lose it entirely.

—George Durnin, 12-1.

"EPICIDIUM"

The Buildings wrecked
askew, destroyed, and still
Lay in shambles out of which steamed the stench of blood
of sweat, of grime.
dust, thick with moisture
hung low upon the bodies of those who had dared to venture near.
The hush was broken only by the wailing monotone mine whistle which prayed unanswered to the sky for none remained to hear it.
And far away
show Poodles still sprawl
at their masters' feet;
And tea is served at three.

—Mildred Paige, 12-7.

"A Decisive Moment in History"

Silence falls. Even the seagulls seem frozen for an eternal moment, etched in sharp relief against the brilliant blue. Then like an explosion in the soundlessness, a greatly amplified voice announces to the tensely waiting world, "Five!" Again the dense silence falls, except in the distance, an acute ear can hear the sound of tons of water pouring over concrete. A plume of vapour stains the flawless tropical sky. A billion ears strain, as the voice continues, "Four!" Now, in the press area, hundreds of movie cameras began to grind, and binoculars are trained on the drama enacting itself a scant mile away. "Three!" In the blockhouse a key is turned completing a circuit. "Two!" The clock creeps toward the vertical. "One!" High above the blockhouse, three men stiffen slightly. One closes his hand above the abort switch. "Zero!"

"T-plus-one."

Through his periscope, one of the observers notices a squirt of flame beneath the poised tons of metal. "Ignition!" he cries in chorus with his counterpart across the blockhouse.

"Two."

"Liftoff!" the two voices announce simultaneously. The monster stirs, lifts slightly, then leaps upwards accelerating towards the sky. "Go baby!" bursts from the fifty straining technicians as the Saturn-Appolo moonship dwindles to a spot in the sky. Finally the terrible sound of the take-off reaches the spectators on Cocoa Beach six miles from the Cape. It throws itself at them like a tidal wave, engulfs them, and flows onward, undiminished.

This sound, the mightiest ever unleashed by man, signals the launching of three men towards the moon, sometime within the next decade. During the succeeding moments hundreds of tons of hydrocarbon fuel and liquid oxygen will unite within the free world's largest combustion chambers, releasing enough energy to dwarf the first atom bomb. The mere technical achievement involved in hurling these three men a quarter of a million miles through space, keeping them alive for two weeks in an alien environment, and returning them safely to earth, is not however what makes this moment decisive, or momentous.

This moment will signify the end of the era of world wars, since both the financing of further space research and survival will necessitate future co-operation between nations. It is even possible that there will be both American and Soviet astronauts on this first team. Such an achievement might herald the arrival of an age of peace and co-operation among men.

In addition to this, man will be taking his second great step along the road to the stars. He will have accepted what Wenher Von Braun has described as "Man's last great challenge"—the exploration of the universe. The practical monetary returns of this voyage will undoubtedly more than justify its undertaking but the real value will not lie in these alone.

A far greater importance will be the gains in knowledge, and understanding of the universe, and in the possibilities of new research into the unknown. The major repercussions, although their effects will not be felt for generations, will ultimately change our civilization profoundly. The way will be open to man's first meeting with other sentient beings. A meeting which may well be the most momentous event since man rose out of the slime of his newly formed world.

To my mind, the moment when man sets his foot upon the path to the planets and beyond, will rank with the most important moments in our history. Here will be a point where man will choose between exploration or extinction. The choice is being made now, at conferences on Disarmament and the peaceful uses of outer space. Let this be a moment of triumph, not of terror.

—George Durnin, 12-1.

Our Neighbour's Basement

Our old neighbour, Mr. Peter Williams, had just died and Mrs. Williams was going to sell out. When she asked me to look for worthless junk (for the salvage) in her basement as her eyes "weren't as good as they used to be", I gladly obliged. After descending carefully down the dark stairs, I squinted and looked around me. I turn on a light. The first thing to present itself to my eye was an old-looking trunk. Opening it (being careful of a worn lock) I began to look through the contents. I found a pile of letters, all pre-1910, with post-marks like "Fort Malzakim, Bombay", "Mossel Bay Fort, Cape Colony", "Wragby Lines" and "Nairobi Club, Nairobi, B.E.A.". These were letters between the Williams' while Peter was a Captain in that globe-trotting regiment, the Sixth Norfolk Fusiliers. Glancing over some of the faded pages I could almost feel the eyes of a Boer sharpshooter, aiming carefully for me, or hear the eerie music of Indian snake charmers. The trunk was full of too many other papers to mention, and after looking at them I turned around and saw a dark face hidden in another corner. Walking over to investigate, and moving a cardboard box, what should present itself before me but a full length portrait of His Gracious Majesty, the mighty King-Emperor, Edward VII, in all the gorgeous robes of imperial splendour. Crossing the room again, I found a phonograph, the kind that must have ground out many a jolly "Turkey Trot" in the old days. Of course, there was the usual furniture, washing machine and old clothes set aside for the salvage but never put out. When I had completed my task, I pondered over what I had found—not death, not life, but latent life. How strange it was to think that all this had once had an urgency, a vital newness about it, and now it lay forgotten in the dark of our neighbour's basement.

—Alan Alvare.

The Role of Newspapers in Modern Life

The first newspapers, or "news-letters" came into being after Gutenberg's introduction of movable type in the latter half of the fifteenth century. The first of these were but slips of paper with perhaps an amusing anecdote, the date of coming County Fair, or an exposition of the quality of Hugh the Clothier's latest goods. Gradually, however, the variety and informativeness of the news reported increased. By the time of Queen Anne, no gentleman could conceive of life without his "Courant". It brought news of Court, Lloyd's, the City, the provinces and abroad. It was this last aspect which made the Boston News Letter so vital a part of life when it began publication in 1702. The outside world was brought just a little nearer. Since the eighteenth century, newspapers have expanded, changed and often improved. The one-hundred-odd dollars necessary for an airmail subscription to the daily Times of London put that worthy newspaper out of the reach of most of us, but our own local newspapers do an admirable job. Their news is varied to meet the needs of the readers.

The articles of greatest general interest are often on the front page. Important socio-economic and political news is usually found here. One must, however, almost invariably turn to search out page eighteen to finish an article begun on the front page. There is no such problem with the editorial page, which is one of the most interesting in the paper. Here may be found reporters' assignments of events, and articles of historical interest. In our local newspapers, Kamienske and MacPherson provide us with amusing cartoons, while Eric Nicoll keeps us supplied with word-humour.

The chief attraction for younger children is the comic section. Even this has a variety of parts. Some, like "B.C.", are relatively new. Others, like Dagwood, were existant in the 1930's. The Katzenjammer Kids, believe it or not, are fifty-six years old!

The social page is designed for women. It reports marriages, births and visits, and gives helpful hints on how to lose those twenty unwanted pounds. Too, it contains the everlasting columns of Abigail Van Buren and Anne Landers.

The second part of the paper contains sports news. Not only are local events reported, but the interested may find results of such things as Old Country Soccer. Less amusing but just as important, is the obituary page, a description of which is not necessary.

Newspapers are an invaluable asset to today's man, for it is necessary to keep abreast of developments in our ever-shrinking world. They are a better weapon against injustice than guns, and are feared by the unjust. We must guard freedom of the press, for only a free press can be of any benefit to a free people.

—Alan Alvare.

Ballad of a Selective Tory

In the parliament of Brit
Where there once was not a whit
Of Whig
There now is hardly left a Tory.
And one who acted big
Now plays the starring role in my story.

They called him Profumo
And he had a good accumululo
Of extra-curric activities
And a model—Christine Keeler
Just happened to be one
Of these.

He met her through an introduction
By a chap named Dr. Ward
And engaged in some seduction—
An activity both adored.

'Twas at a party of the Astor's
I recall
But the proceedings of before
Did not match the after ball.

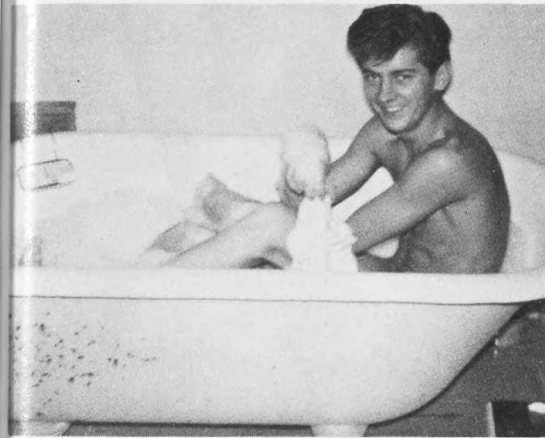

Well, Profumo continued on
In my little story
And with Christine's aid to Ivanov
He turned out not
A very conservative Tory.

Then it was discovered
I have found
That Prof's little secret was blabbered
And dear Chris's parliamentary history
Lesson came to ground.

Poor Val was left in the clinch
And Ivanov has joined her—that's a cinch.
And Mandy Rice-Davies
Has tattled all that she can tell
From the story's score
And poor Miss Keeler
Has told them all to go to hell
'Cause a poor girl just can't make an honest living anymore.

—Leila Valançay.

Meet...

- Joanne
- Liisa
- Angela

three recent high school
grads on their way UP in the business world.

Ask Joanne Phillips, or Liisa Nygard, or Angela Askew why she chose her first permanent job at Great-West Life.

HERE ARE A FEW OF THEIR REASONS:

- Attractive salary
- Excellent promotional opportunities
- Top working conditions
- Recreational activities
- Wide variety of jobs: stenographers, clerk-typists, I.B.M. operators, clerks

Joanne, Liisa and Angela are just three of many high school graduates who have found interesting, satisfying and rewarding careers at Great-West Life. Why not discuss YOUR future with us . . . soon.
